

The News.

On Thursday last two of our brigades under Weitzel, fell into a trap and were gobbled up. Our dispatches tell how the thing was done.

Gen. Lee has written a letter to Gen. Grant, complaining of Butler's placing rebel prisoners under fire in retaliation for the rebels putting colored soldiers captured by them in a like position.

Lee doesn't like the style of the "beast," and argues at great length that the masters have always been entitled to their recaptured slaves. Grant refuses to be led into a discussion upon the slavery question, but informs General Lee that rebel prisoners will be subjected to precisely the same treatment that is meted out to our colored soldiers.

Governor Seymour has taken the trouble to send a commission to Washington, to intercede with the President and Secretary of War, in favor of his "friends." Stanton seems but little inclined to let the rebels off without proper punishment.

A southern editor is responsible for the statement that 300,000 slaves are to be put under arms in the Spring to fight the battles of the Confederacy. We will believe they will try that, when we see it done.

One of those frightful railroad accidents that are becoming altogether too common, took place last night on the Lafayette and Indianapolis railroad, in which twenty-eight persons met with instant death.

Union Meeting at Milton.

The Union citizens of Milton and vicinity held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the Academy, Monday evening, Oct. 24th.

After completing arrangements to attend the Mass. Meeting at Janesville, Wednesday, the 26th inst., General Lucius Fairchild, the Secretary of State, was introduced, and he spoke at length in a most candid and convincing manner upon the reasons why he could not support the Democratic Candidates. On no occasion has the writer ever heard the General speak with greater ease, directness, and with the earnest inspirational power which he possesses.

He was followed by J. M. Flowers, Esq., of Madison, in a short and well considered speech on the inconsistencies of the Democratic Platform.

Hon. W. W. Blackman, of Stoughton, then addressed the audience, holding them to quite a late hour much interested in his stirring speech on the claims of the Administration and our brave soldiers on the support of loyal citizens. The doctor always makes telling points, and his remarks at this time carried with them deep conviction and a strong resolution to aid the government in this hour of peril.

The Glee Club of the Academy sang several spirited pieces. W.

Milton, Oct. 25th, 1861.

TAKING IN SAIL.—The Chiengo Journal, one of the best and most prosperous papers in the country, has done a wise thing and reduced its size to correspond with the times and the high prices of print paper.

Nearly every daily paper in the country publishes more matter, especially of a miscellaneous character, than ninety-nine-hundredths of their regular readers find time to read, from day to day, or care to read, and which might as well be omitted from their columns.

The emblazoned size of the Journal is still large enough to contain all the important news of the day, and will continue to be a first class journal, while the saving to the publishers will be from fifty to one hundred dollars per day.

IS IT STEEP?—One or, two of our subscribers have berated us for raising our subscription price to $2.50 a year, and say that it is "too steep" for them. Now they do not think that they paid too much for a paper, a few years since, when they gave a cord of wood or a sack of flour for a year's subscription and two dollars in cash besides, for the same article. It is steep.

If newspapers had advanced in the same proportion as the farmer's butter, or have been marked up to correspond with the advanced price of the merchant's cotton cloth, all weekly papers would now cost five dollars per year.

R. L. Farnsworth, Esq., late editor of a Democratic paper at South Bend, Indiana, well known throughout that State, and now of St. Louis, Missouri, in a letter to Rev. J. R. Hibbard, of this city, says:

I am no longer on the pro-slavery side or the non-intervention side. I see this war is a clearly defensive war, according to the President's letter. Tell Rev. Ed. Burnham I have caved, and wonder I did not see this view before. I have abandoned non-intervention the moment I could do it.

Col. Washburne is pushing vigorously the work of contesting the election of Dan Voorhees to Congress in the Seventh District of Indiana. The proof of fraud accumulates daily, and it is said that a mass of evidence will be presented in support of Washburne's claim to the seat that will carry certain conviction with it that Voorhees owes his certificate of election to the most unblushing frauds.

The New York Times has the following: We have heard, on very good authority, that a select meeting of Democratic politicians was held, a few evenings ago, in this city, at the house of a prominent Copperhead, to consider the propriety of requiring Mr. Pendleton either to write a good rampart war letter, expressing his views, or to withdraw from the canvass.

An Inside View of Charleston.

The Boston Traveller publishes the following extracts from letters from a lady in Charleston, South Carolina, to a friend in Boston:

Everybody here keeps chickens; our houses generally have large yards. We bought yesterday a pair of geese for twenty dollars, which was considered cheap, as prices are coming down. Butter in market is now only seven dollars a pound; it has been fifteen dollars. I must go to my breakfast of herring, hominy and cold water. We make "Confederate Coffee," but I prefer cold water. Occasionally we have the genuine coffee, and once in a long run a cup of tea, but sugar is too high for constant use.

The soldiers down the harbor have just given us a ball—whiz—whiz—boom! The shells come pretty near us, but we are hardened. — has just started for school. It is in a dangerous place, the shells yesterday falling all around it; yet I did not think it necessary to keep her at home. So you see how we regard our "salutations" of our "friends."

Writing on the 9th of May, she says:

To-day we received a letter by mail of true dated April 20th. The family is now at supper while I write. They are eating bread made of mushy flour as black as your shoe, over which they pour a cup of molasses of the same color, or a little milk for which we pay a dollar a quart. For a special treat I made my husband a cup of tea, but such luxuries are few and far between.

I should be glad to come and see you this summer. I do dread the heat, and this poverty makes it all the harder to endure.

Again, on the 4th of July she writes as follows:

We are all in comfortable health, but the summer's heat is very wearing. My husband has gone into the country to buy a cow, of which we have two already. These go far towards feeding us. We eat hominy and bread for breakfast generally, and I find it healthful and palatable. What will you say when I tell you that I sell our milk for $1. 50 per quart?

We recently sold our piano at auction for $2,650, which in gold is about two-thirds of the cost. It is an intensely hot day. I left off this letter to go down stairs, feeling such a "gomeness," into a couple of fine ripe tomatoes. We are sadly lacking in the most common stimulants. Fruit will be scarce as well as high. Sugar is almost unattainable. I would enjoy your strawberries just at this time. We had a fine supply of green peas and blackberries, but a cold spring cut off the peaches and figs.

The perspiration rolls from me as I write, and I have to remove my spectacles frequently to clean them. "Tell it not in Gath"—that when this letter is done, I shall sit down and translate a page of Caesar. Don't laugh at my learning Latin, or attempting at this late day to extend my education. But I have found it an excellent antidote for the waste, mentally, of this war.

I have but little of sewing, visiting or any other pleasant or necessary occupation to fill up my days, and so when—commenced studying. I determined to keep up with her lessons, which I have done for six months, and do not regret it.

July 19.—It is nine o'clock A. M., and I have just come from the pantry and dairy, having churned a quarter of a pound of butter; yesterday half a pound. We have three cows, one of which I hope we shall sell soon, as they are too much care. In this time of scarcity, when a salary one ample will purchase so little, we find it necessary to resort to unusual means. Oh, for the cool air of Yankedom!

It seems as if it would put new life into my veins.

A NEW STATE.—By the President's proclamation of the admission of Nevada to the Union, another State is gained to freedom, and another star added to the flag.

Next Tuesday.

The greatest danger to the Union ticket in sections like this, where the political sentiment of the people is so overwhelmingly on one side, lies in the feeling of certainty that prevades the minds of the voters. They regard the success of their ticket as a fixed fact, and are therefore quite unconcerned as to whether a full vote is polled or not. We are sorry to say that this feeling of success prevades the people of Rock County at the present time much more than it ought. This has been so long considered the hunting-ground of the State that many of the voters seem inclined to regard a full vote as of very little consequence, and are easily prevailed upon to stay away from the polls, with excuses the most slight and trivial. In many of the towns no organization exists for getting out a full vote, the lukewarm and the indifferent are suffered to remain so, and the consequence will be that some other county will claim the honor that Old Rock may easily win and to which she is justly entitled.

A prominent politician, of this city, the other day, offered to lay a wager of considerable amount, that the majority for Lincoln and Johnson this fall, would be greater in Walworth than in Rock, and gave as a reason for his opinion that in the former county the Union men were thoroughly aroused and heartily engaged in the good work, while in the latter the voters had gone to sleep in security without so much as throwing out a picket guard to tell of the approach of the enemy.

There now remains but one week for work, for organization, and for victory. Everybody knows that this county is perfectly safe so far as the election of the entire county ticket and members of the legislature are concerned. But this is not enough. It is not sufficient that we elect our candidates, for that has ceased to be a credit to Rock county; the only way that we will be entitled to any praise will be to give such an overwhelming majority for the right that its moral thunder will echo and reverberate through every nook and valley of the so-called confederate states,—that every Wisconsin soldier that digs in the trenches before Richmond, or sweeps down the valley of the Shenandoah under Sheridan, or chases Hood under Sherman, may talk of the faithfulness of old Rock amid the glow of their camp fires at night, and forget their dangers and their hardships with the thought that the enemy in their rear is to be taken care of by the people at home.

Voting this year is a sacred duty—a duty just as much in sections of the State where the Union vote is immense, as where it is the least, because it is now only by the voice of a great majority that Wisconsin can be heard. No State is surer to cast its vote for Lincoln and Johnson on the 8th inst., than Wisconsin, and it only remains for loyal men to say how large the majority may be. Think of the effect which an overwhelming victory will have upon the soldiers in the field; think of its effect upon the rebel cause everywhere; think of its influence upon traitors at home; think of all this and VOTE.

Vallandigham's Letter.

The Chicago Post, Green Bay Advocate, and one or two other War Democratic Journals that have not gone down into the valley and shadow of copperheadism without some pangs of conscience, are in the habit of representing to their readers that Vallandigham is shunned and repudiated by the democratic party, and that nobody is responsible for what Mr. Vallandigham may or may not do. This is a very pretty story to tell to those who are not posted, but the great Ohio martyr has heard enough of that kind of insult, and breaks silence at last by giving to the public the letter which we reproduce in another column, and which gives the unwritten, and no doubt truthful, history of the part the unhung traitor took in the Chicago Convention. It will be seen that Vallandigham declares that he himself wrote the "material resolution in the Chicago Platform."

Think of a convicted traitor, condemned by a democratic General, refused release by a democratic Judge, praised and applauded by every rebel in the South, think of him writing a platform for a democratic candidate for the Presidency to stand upon! Can the utmost stretch of the imagination conceive of anything more shameful ly humiliating or degrading?

Letter from the Federal Capitol.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28, 1864.

EDITORS GAZETTE.—We have full power in open rebellion confront us in the field. Traitors in secret at home, are plotting the destruction of the Government. Secret oath-bound organizations of traitors exist in our midst, and the leaders of these organizations have seized upon the old time honored Democratic party, and controlling it, have perverted it to their base uses, and are now using it to consummate and carry out their nefarious schemes. These traitors at home, under the guise of Democracy, are endeavoring by all the means in their power, to aid Jeff Davis in accomplishing the destruction of this government and the division of this Union. Their scheme is a hellish one, and all the means that is in the power of Satan himself to concoct, are to be used to accomplish this purpose. The sanctity of the ballot-box, the great sheet anchor of American liberty, is to be invaded. The scenes enacted in Kansas are to be repeated, and by fraud, if not by fair means, George B. McClellan and George H. Pendleton, the traitor candidates and the allies of Jeff Davis, and his friends, are to be made President and Vice President.

For some time we have had intimations of fraudulent schemes on foot. The small majority in Pennsylvania was a cause of rejoicing to August Belmont and was claimed as a victory. Why? Because he had hopes of being able to reverse the verdict by means of fraud, his pile of gold was not exhausted, his pile of cash were pouring in from his rebel friends in Europe, and as gold was all powerful, he did not allow his courage to flag or fail, but with redoubled energy he continued his work.

This morning the country is startled with the news of the arrest of New York State Agents in this city and in Baltimore who with their accomplices, have been busy for the last two weeks in forging soldiers votes by the thousands and tens of thousands, for the purpose of carrying the State of New York for McClellan and Seymour. The friends of the Union and of Liberty must be on their guard every where. We have now to meet the powers of Evil combined, in one grand assault upon our Liberties. Now or never, is their cry, for they well know, that if they fail now the cause of the rebellion is lost, forever, that they with Jeff Davis and his compatriots, will sink to the lowest depths of infamy.

The rebels have been holding out and hanging on by every means in their power, prolonging this contest until after election. Why so? Because they hope for aid from Vallandigham and his compatriots. They hope these men will get possession of the Government, and then what? Nothing more than that our armies will be withdrawn and their independence acknowledged. Is not Pendleton pledged to this by his Congressional record? Did not McClellan, by all the means his timid nature would allow, so handle and manage our armies, that they should be beaten? Yes, even more, he contemplated a capitulation and surrender after the battle of Malvern Hill, and retreated to Harrison's Landing with that end in view, instead of pushing boldly for Richmond, as Kearny and others declared he should have done. But Sumner and Heintzelman however balked McClellan's plan by thrashing the rebels at Malvern Hill, so that they could not and did not follow him for two days after.

Why was McClellan so over anxious to get McDowell away from Fredericksburg, shipped on board of transports, en route for the Peninsula. Does it not look as though it was a part of his treasonable plan to uncover Washington, leaving it defended by only 20,000 raw and unorganized troops, an easy prey to Stonewall Jackson.

Abraham Lincoln saw the danger, retained McDowell at Fredericksburg, and subsequent events has clearly shown, saved the capital. Look at McClellan's career as you will, and the conviction must be strong that he meditated treason to the government. Many of his acts can only be explained on this theory, and he is now the fit candidate of traitors for the Presidency, and his desperate supporters, scrapping at nothing, are determined if possible to elect him, by fraud, if by no other means. Free men of America, by all that is sacred, preserve the liberties of our glorious country, by preserving the purity of the ballot-box. Rise in your might and majesty, and repudiate this infatuated party that thus dares by fraud and perjury to even attempt to thwart your will, as legitimately expressed by the ballot.

The torch light procession to which I alluded, to one week ago, as coming off that evening, was a splendid affair, and completely outstripped any thing of the kind which has ever taken place here. This is the testimony of persons who have been residents here for over 30 years. There were from 7,000 to 10,000 persons in the procession, over 1,500 coaches, 300 large and small carriages, Chinese lanterns, &c., innumerable, with a great variety of splendid devices of all kinds, such as monitors, &c., &c. There were at least a dozen brass bands in the procession. Wisconsin was well represented by citizens and soldiers, with a brass band and a drum corps furnished by the Clifburne Hospital. Wisconsin soldiers bore the splendid banner presented to the Iron Brigade by the Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan clerks, and also a large transparency, on one side of which was a large bowie knife labelled John F. Potter, and the motto, "Wisconsin maintains the right of Free Discussion in Congress." On the reverse, "If any Southern States secede I will give them as many slaves as they can hold at the point of the bayonet—S. A. Douglas." The route of the procession was eight miles in length, and occupied three hours in traversing it, and it was lined with spectators, not less than 75,000 persons witnessing the splendid scene. At the point of starting, not less than 10,000 persons congregated to witness the grand display.

While passing the Democratic headquarters, on Pennsylvania Avenue, the copperheads, true to their rowdy interests, tried to get up a row by insults, hisses and groans, throwing brickbats at the transparencies. The police did their best to preserve quiet, but all in vain, and some soldier, in one of the wagons, madened at the insults and brickbats, and feeling that the attaching of the names of McClellan and Pendleton to the American flag, was an insult, applied his torch to the names at the bottom of the flag, and they were burned off. This was to be regretted, and the city club disavowed the act, and offered to replace the flag with a new one. Since then the Democrats—as they call themselves, have tried to break up two club gatherings.

In 1860, the same hellish spirits attacked the Republican Wigwam with brickbats and firearms, and damaged the building, private property to the amount of $1,000. They never disavowed the act, or offered to make reparation. They have not honor enough about them to do such a thing. In this locality Democracy and rowdyism are synonymous terms, and but very few respectable Democrats attend their gatherings. On the contrary, many who profess to be Democrats, and claim to be gentlemen, have refused to attend Democratic gatherings here, because of the rowdyism character of the leaders and getters up of their public demonstrations. However the campaign is nearly ended, and all peaceful citizens rejoice that such is the fact.

Yes, the campaign is nearly ended, and many who have labored unceasingly for months can now have a respite from their labors. The Congressional Executive Committee room closes this week. Hero hundreds of clerks have spent their evenings, mailing documents by the millions to all parts of the country. Many also have worked diligently collating facts and preparing documents for the printer. One gentleman of my acquaintance has burned midnight oil for several weeks at such labor, and his pen has produced more valuable documents in this campaign, than that of any other one man. In 1863, Mr. William A. Cook, the Head of the Pre-Election Bureau of the General Land Office, and formerly a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, used his pen with good effect in showing up the record of Judge Woodward. He next compiled two pamphlets devoted to Frank Pierce and New Hampshire Democracy. This was soon published by the record of Vallandigham. Next came an admirable document entitled "Political Dialogues," being a dialogue between some soldiers and officers on their right to vote and whom they should support, in which the record of the Democracy in opposition to soldiers voting was admirably and handsomely shown up. He has also prepared a very able document of over fifty pages, showing the opinions and practices of the founders of our Government, relating to Arbitrary arrests, suspension of Habeas Corpus writ, seizure of arms, confiscation, &c., &c., clearly showing that Abraham Lincoln is fully sustained in all that he has done in this line, by our Revolutionary fathers. Mr. Cook has shown unweary diligence and perseverance in his researches, and great tact and ability in the manner in which he has handled and presented his subject. His last work is very valuable for reference and should be in the hands of every loyal editor in the land. I shall not be surprised to hear that this faithful laborer in the cause is made the recipient of some good position, more profitable and responsible than the one he now holds, for he most certainly has earned it by his labors.

LYON'S KATHATRON.

Kathaton is from the Greek word "Katharos," signifying to cleanse, to purify and restore. This article is what its name signifies. For preserving, restoring and beautifying the human hair it is the most remarkable preparation in the world. It is again owned and put up by the original proprietor, and is now made with the same care, skill and attention which gave it a sale of over one million bottles per annum.

It is a most delightful Hair Dressing. It eradicates scurf and dandruff. It keeps the hair cool and clean. It makes the hair rich, soft and glossy. It prevents the hair from falling off and turning gray. It restores hair upon bald heads. Any body or gentleman who values a beautiful head of hair should use Lyon's Kathaton. It is known and used throughout the civilized world. Sold by all respectable dealers.

The greatest danger to the Union ticket, in sections like this, where the political sentiment of the people is so overwhelmingly on one side, lies in the feeling of certainty that prevades the minds of the voters. They regard the success of their ticket as a fixed fact, and are therefore quite unconcerned as to whether a full vote is polled or not.

The greatest danger to the Union ticket, in sections like this, where the political sentiment of the people is so overwhelmingly on one side, lies in the feeling of certainty that prevades the minds of the voters. They regard the success of their ticket as a fixed fact, and are therefore quite unconcerned as to whether a full vote is polled or not. We are sorry to say that this feeling of success prevades the people of Rock County at the present time much more than it ought. This has been so long considered the banner county of the State that many of the voters seem inclined to regard a full vote as of very little consequence, and are easily prevailed upon to stay away from the polls, with excuses the most slight and trivial. In many of the towns no organization exists for getting out a full vote, the lukewarm, and the indifferent are suffered to remain so, and the consequence will be that some other section will claim the honor that Old Rock may easily win and to which she is justly entitled.

A prominent politician, of this city, the other day, offered to lay a wager of considerable amount, that the majority for Lincoln and Johnson this fall, would be greater in Walworth than in Rock, and gave as a reason for his opinion that in the former county the Union men were thoroughly aroused and heartily engaged in the good work, while in the latter the voters had gone to sleep in security without so much as throwing out a picket guard to tell of the approach of the enemy.

There now remains but one week for work, for organization, and for victory. Everybody knows that this county is perfectly safe so far as the election of the entire county ticket and members of the legislature are concerned. But this is not enough. It is not sufficient that we elect our candidates, for that has ceased to be a credit to Rock county; the only way that we will be entitled to any praise will be to give such an overwhelming majority for the right that its moral thunder will echo and reverberate through every nook and valley of the so-called confederate states;—that every Wisconsin soldier that digs in the trenches before Richmond, or sweeps down the valley of the Shenandoah under Sheridan, or chases Hood under Sherman, may talk of the faithfulness of old Rock; and the glow of their camp fires at night, and forget their dangers and their hardships with the thought that the enemy in their roar is to be taken care of by the people at home.

Voting this year is a sacred duty—a duty just as much in sections of the State where the Union vote is immense, as where it is the least; because it's now only by the voice of a great majority that Wisconsin can be heard. No State is sure to cast its vote for Lincoln and Johnson on the 8th inst., than Wisconsin, and it only remains for loyal men to say how large the majority may be. Think of the effect which an overwhelming victory will have upon the soldiers in the field; think of its effect upon the rebel cause everywhere; think of its influence upon traitors at home; think of all this and VOTE!

Vallandigham's Letter.

The Chicago Post, Green Bay Advocate, and one or two other War Democratic Journals that have gotten down into the valley and shadow of copperheadism without some pangs of conscience, are in the habit of representing to their readers that Vallandigham is声名 and graduated by the democratic party, and that nobody is responsible for what Mr. Vallandigham may or may not do. This is a very pretty story to tell to those who are not posted, but the great Ohio martyr has heard enough of that kind of insult, and breaks silence at last by giving to the public the letter which we reproduce in another column, and which gives the unwritten, and no doubt truthful, history of the part the unhung traitor took in the Chicago Convention.
